
SDRM
International Society for the Development of Research on Magnesium

President Prof. Federica I. Wolf

Rome, March 2013

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

Magnesium Research, the official journal of the International Society for the Development of the Research on Magnesium was founded some 25 years ago by Prof. Jean Durlach, one of the very first scientists to recognize the pivotal role of magnesium in medicine. At that time there were few journals dedicated to research issues in magnesium and other biominerals. Thanks to its regular pace in publishing high quality and broad audience manuscripts, Magnesium Research gradually became the reference journal for anyone interested in magnesium research. In 2000 Magnesium Research was included in ISI database and its IF averaged 1.5 over the past 5 years.

The latest achievements were made possible by the unflinching work of André Mazur, who served as Editor in Chief since 2007. We shall thank André for his effort and dedication in managing the Journal. He constantly pursued the goal of defining Journal's scopes and interdisciplinarity within the mainstream of high quality translational research. André's job was well reflected in the IF of Magnesium Research, which remained remarkably stable over years and showed a slow but gratifying trend toward higher ranks.

I am convinced that by collaborating with André in the managing of the journal we could improve these results even further. Magnesium Research should host reviews, commentaries, and highlights on most recent advances in the field, thus disseminating ideas and fostering discussions. All Members of Editorial Board are invited to contribute. To this aim, we present the 2013 Editorial Board of Magnesium Research, which enjoys the presence of previous active Members and welcomes new Members as well.

We believe that the future of Magnesium Research will entirely depend on our attitude toward working together and improving the international visibility of our Society and its credibility in attracting resources.

We warmly thank our Board Members, Reviewers and contributing Authors, looking forward to future exciting collaborations.

Best regards,

Prof. Federica Wolf
Co-Editor in Chief
